Cookie Policy

This Cookie policy explains what cookies are and how we use them. You should read this policy so you can understand what type of cookies we use, the information we collect using cookies and how that information is used.

What are Cookies?

Cookies are small data-files that websites and web-applications store on your device. They are processed and stored by your web browser, and are in themselves harmless but often serve crucial functions for websites.

There are generally 4 types of Cookies

Session cookies

These cookies are used to store temporary information. The information is acquired through a single session or the time between the opening and closing of your browser. Once you close your browser, they are automatically deleted.

Persistent Cookies

Permanent cookies are not deleted once you close your browser but they are stored on your device until the expiration date or until you delete them manually.

First-party Cookies

The term “first party” means getting cookies directly from the website’s domain you are on.

Third-party Cookies

These cookies are related to external domains as they are not issued by the website’s domain you are on.

For more information about Cookies, please see: <https://www.internetcookies.com/>

Why do we only use so few cookies

At Shopperly.dk we believe in privacy and therefore we have built the platform to use only the minimum required system cookies.

We are not storing personal accessible information in cookies.

How do I delete and/or block cookies?

If you want to delete, restrict or block cookies, you can do so through your browser settings. We recommend that you use your favorite search engine to find a guide on how to do this with the specific browser you use.

A search query example could be: How do I delete cookies in the Google Chrome Browser?

Please note that the Shopperly platform will not function properly without the use of Cookies.
